

Four Quotations	Hospital-Physician Relationship Problems	iv
Foreword	The Hospital Executive and Practice Administrator Perspective	viii
	The Physician Perspective	x
Chapter One	INTRODUCTION - Hospitals and Physicians Need Each Other, but It is No Love Fest	1
Chapter Two	COMPETENCE – THE FIRST “C”	6
	Can your physicians trust your hospital with their patients? Any service you provide needs to be world-class. How do the doctors in your facility judge its quality? Here is what you can do to demonstrate your excellence.
Chapter Three	CONVENIENCE – THE SECOND “C”	17
	Does your hospital offer pay-at-the-pump convenience? Or is every interaction characterized by bureaucratic hassles and mind-numbing red tape? Here is your opportunity to seize a true competitive advantage.
Chapter Four	CLARITY – THE THIRD “C”	26
	Did you really mean what your doctors thought you said? How could you have expressed your message more clearly? The first step to understanding is unambiguous communications. Find out how you can avoid the pitfalls of ambiguity and gain the benefits of clear, simple, and precise interactions with your physicians.

Chapter Five	CONTINUITY – THE FOURTH “C”	32
	The challenges of change surround us. Providing anchors of continuity frees your doctors to trust your institution and creates a platform for building on-going relationships. The more turbulent your environment, the more critical it is to have solid foundations. Learn how to create an Oasis of Stability in a Sea of Change.
Chapter Six	COMPETITION – THE FIFTH “C”	39
	Like it or not, your hospital will, at times, compete against your doctors for patients, employees, and revenue. Discover how to use competition to build stronger relationships with your doctors, while avoiding its pitfalls.
Chapter Seven	CONTROL – THE SIXTH “C”	47
	Who is in charge? Why is control such a critical issue for physicians? Do you have to be in charge? Find out how turning loose may achieve your ultimate goals.
Chapter Eight	CASH – THE SEVENTH “C”	53
	Cash is King. Are you putting it into or taking it out of your physicians’ pockets? Your answer will likely determine the status of your hospital’s physician relationships. Learn how to put money in your doctors’ hands, without taking it out of yours.
Chapter Nine	NEEDED: AN EIGHTH “C” – CONSUMER-DRIVEN HEALTHCARE CONNECTIONS	61
	What is needed in hospital-physician relationships is a new business model – a new way of thinking about hospital-physician relationships. Here is a fresh way of looking at how your hospital interacts with its physicians.	